

I have several issues.

First I am an early adopter. As such I face spending another $1000 for a new receiver.

Secondly, this is the same group of people that wanted to stop the VCR, DVD recorders, and Tivo. Which history has shown they where wrong.

Thirdly, the whole copyright issue is becoming troublesome. With so many items being copyrighted for so long it is doubtful that in the future anything will be in the public domain. A person of limited means will never be able to view quality programming.

Lastly, just because it can be done does not mean it should be done.
